Cable to Miss Zara Pitts

There is no information available in FBIB that would throw any light on the attached message to Miss Zara Pitts. It is believed that this is a prisoner of war message. All prisoners' messages when received during the War were teletyped to the Office of the Provost Marshall, War Department which should have a record of the attached cable.

There is no way in which FBIB can determine whether this is a code message or a bona fide prisoner's message. However, the War Department records should show whether there was in Japan at the time this message was dispatched a prisoner of war by the name given in this cable.

All prisoner of war messages which were intercepted by FBIB have been turned over the National Archives.
